Jeremy Parsons

JEREMY PARSONS is a television personality whose skills in front of and behind the camera have taken him around the world to host and produce shows and interview the biggest stars – giving viewers engaging, unique and authentic access to the most prominent culture shapers of our time. From one-on-one chats to red carpet premieres, comedy sketches to reality docu-series, Jeremy’s impressive combination of experience and variety most recently led him to multiple appearances as entertainment anchor on LA’s number one morning show – the KTLA Morning News. Jeremy can next be seen as the co-host of People.com’s new daily show, “People Now.”

After working in radio on multiple stations in Ohio and a syndicated network where he quickly established a strong presence on-air, Jeremy headed off to Los Angeles determined to pursue his dream career in television. Shortly after arriving in Hollywood, he landed various production positions with Dick Clark Productions, ABC’s “Good Morning America,” and multiple entertainment networks.

In addition to producing, Jeremy was quickly tapped as an on-air contributor for the entertainment news show, “Rough Cut LA” at the Los Angeles based network LTN, where he covered red carpet premieres, press junkets, and hosted in-studio interviews with the casts of new movies. It was there that his engaging and witty personality garnered the attention of peers and network leaders, and eventually led him to create, host, write and produce a successful live web-based series.

Jeremy’s most recent momentum has grown at ReelzChannel as a host and reporter/producer for the daily entertainment news show “Hollywood Dailies” and the network’s weekly in-depth interview based show “Spotlight.” He hosted and co-developed a docu-series pilot centering around extreme movie fans. The network also utilized Jeremy’s on-air talents for a 2 season, 100+ episode stint as co-host of the movie trailer show “The Big Tease” as well as the network’s movie showcase feature “Our Favorite Movies.” In addition, he previously produced for ReelzChannel’s “Secret’s Out with Leonard Maltin.”

While at Reelz, Jeremy also maintained a two year run as the face of Verizon’s VCast music countdown show “10 to Play,” which put him at the fingertips of over 80 million Verizon mobile customers every day. Along with appearances on “The Rotten Tomatoes Show,” Ryan Seacrest Productions cast Jeremy to helm several prank segments on TLC’s “iKid with Brad Garrett,” and he co-hosted a tailgate tour reality pilot for Shed Media and the Versus network.

His slate of half hour TV specials have taken audiences around the globe to the iconic set of Harry Potter with the ensemble cast in London, to the festive towns surrounding Barcelona, Spain, giving a rare look at Walt Disney’s short film collaboration with famed artist Salvador Dali, to the shores of Rio de Janeiro with the cast of the movie Rio, and behind the scenes of the top action and super hero movies that dominate the box office worldwide.

On a personal level, Jeremy is a reality television addict and a loud, proud and avid listener of Top 40 pop radio. A native of West Virginia, he loves staying active and being outdoors, so much so that he has cycled the California coast from San Francisco to San Diego, then over to Phoenix — twice. Jeremy recently began blazing a trail as a dad when he fathered the world’s most beautiful daughter. He and his wife are also animal lovers who obsess about their two fat cats. A huge Tom Hanks fan, Jeremy finds inspiration from one of his favorite movies, “Big,” which reminds him of the important things in life – cherish your friends and family, dream big, have faith, and most importantly...be careful what you say to a Zoltar machine at the local carnival...
